Pat is one of the most engaging and impactful speakers I have heard in some time. The audience at the Strategic Capability Network event consists of leaders within their respective organizations – everyone walked away with a new mindset and at least one insight, tip or technique to apply immediately not only to increase their own personal effectiveness but to increase their leadership impact to make more productive work environments in their organizations. The value in the short one hour far exceeded all expectations. Pat is top drawer and capable to set the stage for any learning event to be effective!

Keynote Presentations:

Business Gets Better When You Get Better.

The number of small business owners in North America is on the rise. Many individuals are leaving their corporate jobs – as a result of being out-sourced, down-sized, fired, or retiring – and now believe it's time to get into business. They want to take their passion and their gifts out to the world.

And there's one REALLY BIG PROBLEM with this. They have no clue what it takes to own a business. This is Pat's most popular keynote – and in it she teaches principles that can be applied personally, professionally and organizationally. Pat speaks to the need for creating a plan, investing in yourself/your people, doing the work, being accountable and measuring everything. And she also addresses the BIG challenge in organizations these days – lack and waste!

She teaches that business gets better when the individual gets better – and she speaks from fact, because it's her story.

This presentation is informative and thought-provoking with humor injected throughout.

Stop Compromising and Live Your Best Life

In this very popular presentation, Pat will give you the steps she has taken to completely transform her life at age 57 – from trash bag to travel in a private plane around the world each year, she captivates, inspires and challenges people to stop settling for less, stop selling out, stop compromising .....and take charge of your life, your work, your happiness and your finances. People from every walk of life will relate to what she has to say – and will accept the challenge to do more and be more.

Busting the Myths of Time Management

The perfect keynote for people in business who grapple with the whole concept of Time Management. There is no such thing! Everyone from front-line leadership to the CEO will relate to the concepts Pat gives (and lives) when it comes to maximizing your time, energy and talent – which will not only impact the bottom line in any organization, but will improve and enhance one's overall approach to life and family too.
